What is a Real-Life Manifestation Game ?

Like a role-playing game, you can create your own profile, but here you can map, share and train real skills.

Further, real resources are made visible and available, managed and used, similar to a strategy game.

Project management tasks can be mapped as quests, levels, missions and problems become challenges.

The storytelling is based on the real conditions and challenges on our planet.

The goal of the game is to create win-win-win situations. Win for you, win for us, win for the world.

Game Elements

The App

The app provides an interactive geographical map as a playing field. It also allows you to create and view player profiles. The marketplace shows offers and needs.

Print Material

To complement offline play, there are flyers, stickers, QR codes, signs and workbooks that invite players to play.

Players receive or print ID cards with QR codes that are used for networking (more on this later).

Gatherings

Coming together at workshops, festivals and local meetings to connect, build structures and engage new players.

Permanent Structures

When we play, we create tangible structures like places and infrastructure.

And also intangibles like networks of relationships, stories, information ...

Goals of the game

1. To build a decentralised network
2. Free development of our collective and individual potential
3. Start co-creation and build collective structures

Gameplay

Through playful elements and gamification, the player is motivated and guided through quests and levels.

Player Profiles

The player examines himself and his abilities as well as deeper desires and visions to define his character or player profile.

The focus is on the following questions:

- How and in what kind of world do I want to live?
- Who am I and what are my special abilities or my special task in this life?
- What do I have to give? What can and do I want to share with others and the world?
- What do I still need to come fully into my power? How can others support me in this?

Resources

The player explores and defines his/her offers and needs, shares his/her resources and uses those of the network

E.g. tools, machines, electrical appliances, vehicles, food and drink, places to sleep, rides, books, access to the internet, individual skills and help in everyday life

Realising Projects

The player joins projects and starts his own.

The game offers support in project management or crowdfunding.

In this way, structures, events, permanent places, infrastructure and everything we need to meet our human needs in harmony with Mother Earth can be created.

Making Change visible

The player is motivated to map and document the newly emerging world by ...

- adding places, events etc. to the map
- documenting projects with text, images and sound
- telling stories of change

Web of Trust

As we connect with others in real life and build our personal network, we are simultaneously exchanging cryptographic keys and building a "Web of Trust".

Decentralised IDs

When we create our profile, a key pair consisting of a private key and a public key is generated at the same time.

We share the public key with our friends and they can use it to encrypt data for us.

We keep the private key secret. It is needed to decrypt data that has been encrypted for us on our device.

Key Exchange

When we meet people in real life, we can exchange our public keys by scanning each other's QR codes or on paper.

Private data sharing

Within our network, we can then share our profiles, offers, needs, projects, locations and events end-to-end encrypted.

Principles

Everything is just a game

Everything happens voluntarily, out of ourselves in the flow. Everyone is invited to join in at any time.

No Money

Since the fun stops with money, we don't pay each other money when we play.

Decentralised structures

All structures we create are decentralised and free of hierarchies. The same rules apply to everyone.

Real life

Real change happens in real life. We only use the internet where it directly helps to organise real encounters.

Imagine you wake up sometime in the early 21st century
on planet Earth from some kind of hypnosis that has somehow controlled you
and all other humans
all of your lives.

Magically,
a new consciousness suddenly grows.
You recognise yourself
and slowly become aware of your superpowers

The strange old control system
becomes more and more cracked
and begins to disintegrate.
Next to you slowly
more and more people
are awaken

In visions you see a new world
